VSR NETWORKS ANNOUNCES JOINT DEVELOPMENT INITIATIVE TO SUPPORT GOOGLE'S ANDROID MOBILE PLATFORM

VSR Networks and TechDiscovery will extend Reveille's Application Performance Management System to support Google's Open Handset Alliance project

Orlando, January 30, 2008– VSR Networks, Inc. and TechDiscovery today announced that Reveille, the industry-standard Application Performance Management System, would support Google's mobile technology initiative called Android. Android provides a software stack for mobile devices that includes an operating system, middleware and key applications. VSR will jointly develop and support the Reveille Android mobile client with Atlanta-based TechDiscovery, a leading business-focused IT solutions provider for world-class companies.

“With the Reveille Android Mobile Client, VSR continues to expand our support for mission critical and emerging mobile technologies,” said Robert Estes, President and General Manager of VSR Networks. “We are thrilled to be working with a partner like TechDiscovery. Their experience in developing and delivering world-class applications and solutions will help ensure that the Reveille Android client will provide the high-performance capabilities Android users will need.”

With the release of the Reveille Mobile Application Suite, VSR became the first company to provide IT and business professionals with the ability to manage critical business processes from mobile devices. Reveille Android client users will have access to the same proven functionality that provides critical information concerning the health of important technology-based business operations.
